

Andrew and Donelle Giveans

Fighting for life

Special account opened to assist Giveans baby

BY JACQUI COCHRAN

Andrew Joseph Giveans III is one of Bay St. Louis' most recent and special residents.

Yesterday, he was exactly five months old and each day that passes is another for which his parents thank God.

Andrew was born with multiple congenital anomalies. He has macrocephaly, an enlargement of the brain; hydrocephaly, fluid on the brain; ventricular septal defect, a hole in his heart; supraventricular tachycardia, a malfunction of the ventricular muscle which pumps the heart; pectus excavatum, severely sunken chest cavity; and multiple respiratory defects.

Andrew cannot receive nourishment by mouth, for he aspirates everything directly into his lungs; even his own saliva has become a threat.

Andrew's parents, Andrew J. Giveans Jr. and Donelle, are 25 years old. They have one other child, Amanda, a beautiful four-year-old brunette.

Mr. Giveans is a 1986 Bay High School graduate and native of Bay St. Louis. Mrs. Giveans is a New Orleans native.

Mr. Giveans works in New Orleans for U.S. Gypsum, through which he has up to $1 million in lifetime health coverage. Andrew's medical needs are expected to exhaust that amount within the first year of his life.

While Andrew's little body fights to keep moving, his parents fight to keep some semblance of normalcy in their home.

Only this month, Mrs. Giveans was allowed 12 hours of in-home nurse's aid for Andrew under their insurance coverage. Prior to the assistance of two LPN's, Mrs. Giveans tended to all of Andrew's needs.

Availability of local services is another problem for the Giveans.

"Locally there are no facilities to address the needs of our crippled and severely ill children," Mrs. Giveans explained. The only hospital in all of Mississippi which can meet Andrew's needs is in Jackson, which is three hours from the Coast.

"Slidell Memorial Hospital, Tulane Medical Center and Children's Hospital in New Orleans are closer facilities, but they do not accept Mississippi Medicaid."

Mrs. Giveans said the day is coming when she will have to move with Andrew in order to receive financial assistance with his medical care.

Andrew is under the care of eight specialists. The immediate goal at this time is to build up the infant's strength. Andrew is to increase his monthly intake from four cases of formula to five, and the formula costs $100 a case.

As Andrew lay in his crib with tubes and monitors extending from his body, LPN Barbara Pooler spoke encour-

Lakeshore trailers cause complaints

BY TRACI BONNEY

Several Lakeshore residents voiced their concerns to the board of supervisors Tuesday about the lack of county zoning regulations.

Mary Caillier, Elva Buran and Pat LeFave told the board they believe that many people who are bringing mobile home trailers into Lakeshore and setting them up are doing so without proper permission.

Buran said the lot across from her residence now has a trailer on it, and she isn't sure the owners have complied with flood plain regulations concerning elevation.

LeFave said her neighbors have installed a trailer next to their house, and she believes they may have hooked it up to their existing power meter and septic system.

Caillier told the supervisors that other newcomers to Lakeshore may be doing the same thing, installing their trailers on previously used systems instead of following proper procedures.

Buran asked the board if they had accepted the county planning commission's comprehensive county zoning plan. Mike Ladner told her the study had been accepted, but not adopted.

Board attorney Gerald Gex told the women any property owner planning to construct or install a new building in the county, outside the city limits of Bay St. Louis or Waveland, must contact county building inspector Don Murray to receive permission to do so.

Both Gex and planning commission attorney John Scafile, who attended the meeting at the supervisors' request, suggested that the women present their concerns and suspicions to Murray, who would then be able to check the sites in question.

Infant deaths remain under investigation

BY JACQUI COCHRAN

The Bay St. Louis Police Department confirmed the recent deaths of two newborn infants.

Detective Tom Burleson stated the incidents are under investigation at this time and the department is working with the district attorney's office as to possible charges.

It is rumored that in two separate incidents, women gave birth to infants which were allowed to fall into toilet bowls and remain until dead.

Circuit clerk's office offers extended hours

BY JANET MCQUEEN

The Hancock County Circuit Clerk's office will offer extended hours next week for voter registration, said clerk Pam Metzler.

Monday, Feb. 3 through Friday, Feb. 7, the office will be open from 8 a.m. until 7 p.m. to allow working members of the community to register at their convenience. The office will also offer Saturday registration from 8 a.m. until noon on Feb. 8.

Persons wishing to vote in the March 10 election must be registered by Feb. 8, said Metzler.

A Russian force invaded Petal, Mississippi, last Saturday.

The invasion was the latest in a five-year-old affair, with the force composed of 20 students invited to the small town for an annual checkers tournament.

Three of the girls resided with local families for a few days. Two of them — Nastya and Anya, both 12 — lived with Dr. and Mrs. James Mahler and their two daughters, Sarah, 10, and Emily, 8. The other girl — a 15-year-old also named Nastya but referred to during her time here by her English name, Stacy — stayed with David and Eileen Dorn and their children, Missy, 10, and David, 5.

Stacy served as group spokeswoman during their interview, since she has a fuller command of English and less shyness than the other two girls.

During their visit, the girls' host families treated the visitors to trips to New Orleans, the

Longfellow boundary dispute nears settlement

BY TRACI BONNEY

John Scafile says he will support the city's latest Longfellow Road survey.

The survey, conducted by James Chiniche, was contracted by the City to settle a longstanding question as to whether or not some property owners are encroaching on the City's right-of-way on Longfellow. Chiniche has sought to establish the true location of a disputed section corner.

The property owners who made the claim said the properties on the north side of the street are encroaching on the right-of-way, forcing the city to encroach on the south side properties.

Scafile, Bay St. Louis's city attorney, told the city council at its regular meeting Tuesday that Chiniche is preparing the documentation of his survey to give to the council.

While Scafile said the survey cannot be guaranteed against challenge, he told the councilmen, "If we have to go to court, I'll go to court with it."

He added that he doesn't anticipate any court challenges.

Scafile said that according to Chiniche's survey, the city most likely will not have to move either 10th Street or Longfellow because both streets should be within the established rights-of-way.

The attorney explained that Chiniche's survey field work shows the northeast section corner established by surveyor Gene Richardson in some of his older work to be the one closest to the point Chiniche established. Chiniche's corner is about three feet north of Richardson's, while one marked by Harry Smith several years ago is even farther north.

ANTI-LITTER CAMPAIGN

At the request of Chamber of Commerce president Basil Kennedy, the council passed a resolution declaring March 21 as the city kickoff day for the Chamber of Commerce Beautification Committee's "Plan for Pride and Progress" anti-litter campaign and the week of April 20 as "Litter Awareness Week."

The council's resolution is similar to a resolution that has been presented to and passed by the board of supervisors and that will be presented to the Waveland Board of Aldermen.

Kennedy said the committee's goal for the county is "Litter-Free by '93."

He knew we weren't ready,

We'd never be the same.

Three slightly injured during two-vehicle collision

Three Bay St. Louis residents were treated Saturday for minor injuries after their car collided with a pickup truck in Gulfport, according to Lt. Ricky Chapman of the Gulfport Police Department.

Chapman said Donna Jean Kelly, 36, was driving east on Hwy. 90 shortly before 6 p.m. when she apparently fell asleep at the wheel and her car rammed into a pickup truck stopped at the intersection of Hwy. 90 and Hewes Avenue.

Kelly and her two passengers, Paula Carter, 29, and Scott Carter Jr., 3, were taken to Memorial Hospital at Gulfport.

Chapman said the pickup truck driver, Larry J. Spratley, 43, of Biloxi, was not injured and no charges have been filed.

Woods arson reporter rewarded

BY T.H. TOUPS
Joy Ladner, public relations vice president of Gulf

executive vice president of the Mississippi Forestry Commission. Also attending the presentation were county forester Mark Jamieson and Marion Parker, protection forester for the forestry commission's southeastern district.

Ladner spotted someone leaving the area of a woods fire near Interstate 10 in Hancock County October 6, 1991. She reported the incident immediately. Another witness also reported seeing a person leave the scene.

The two reports resulted in the arrest and conviction of the arsonist.

Parker said Hancock County had an average of 252 woods fires annually over a five-year period, destroying 3,589 acres of forest. "Eighty to 90 percent of these fires are the result of arson," he stated.

90 location until December, 1992 or spring of 1993, he said, until Exxon mandated that the gasoline pumps be disconnected with the change of ownership for liability purposes.

"The Environmental Protection Agency notified Mr. Clark that the pumps must be pulled up," said Mason. "Brand new, electric pumps will be installed for the new operation."

Construction on the new station should be completed within 100 days from start to finish, he said. Work should begin some time in June, when Mason claims the State Highway Department will begin widening the intersection in front of the business.

The Waveland businessman will continue to offer automobile maintenance in the station's bays until work begins on the new store.

"It has been a good 14 years for me and for my family," he said. Mason will remain in Waveland, and is pursuing several business options.

men where the City stands on problems with parks and recycling.

Black said young children have nowhere to play because local parks lack proper equipment and are badly polluted with broken bottles and other litter. He stressed the need for action to remedy the problem. "It's something we need to address besides dockside gambling," he commented, drawing a few "amen"s and a "thank you" from the audience.

Concerning the recycling, he asked what progress has been made.

Mayor Eddie Favre told Black the City has received a copy of a proposed Waste Management contract that would include curbside recycling service. The contract is being studied at this time, Favre said.

St. Francis Street resident Sam Nichols reminded the Council of the need to clean some properties near his residence, including the MCM Club that burned down a few months ago. He presented photos to underscore the seriousness of the problem.

At the beginning of the meeting, the council had authorized clerk Mike Cuevas to advertise for bids on three property cleanups, including the ones Nichols mentioned. Council chairman Jim Rutherford told Nichols this, and also explained the City had not been able to deal with the MCM Club because federal agents had been investigating the fire that destroyed more than half the building.

OTHER BUSINESS

The council heard reports from Cuevas, municipal clerk Kay Johnson, Scaife and Favre; accepted depository bids from Merchants, Eastover and Peoples banks; and set a workshop meeting for 5 p.m. Wednesday.

"QUOTABLE QUOTES"

By Ellis C. Cuevas

Coming March 7 will be the second annual Indoor Arts and Crafts Show at Hancock High School.

This is an opportunity for persons involved in arts and crafts to display their wares at a time of year when things are rather slow before the summer rush.

The school has a beautiful area for displays and also very good parking for the visitors.

Interested parties are asked to call 467-4466 for further information.

I am glad to see the county farm has once again produced a large batch of catfish.

The thing that amazes me is the number of fish produced in such a small pond.

It is good that the county farm supplements the feeding of inmates at our Hancock County Criminal Justice Facility.

The farm really plays a dual roll, as it also gives prisoners an opportunity to learn how to work with others.

We hear a lot of conversation about native plants, and I know there are some folks who may want to know the species of some of them.

In the celebration of Arbor Day, which so happens to be Valentine's Day, the Crosby Arboretum's Pinecote Pavilion in Picayune will offer some native plants for sale.

Dogwoods, Redbuds, Mayhaws, Witch Hazel, Fringe Tree and Native Azaleas will be some of the plants available for purchase.

For further information, call Bob Bruszek, curator of Pinecote, at 799-0500.

THE PEOPLE'S BUSINESS

A Weekly Editorial
From Mississippi Economic Council

Choice in education debated

The issue of choice in education, debated by a lineup of national and state educational leaders, will be the focal point of a statewide forum in Jackson on Jan. 23.

The Educational Forum, sponsored by the Mississippi Economic Council, is designed to provide information to Mississippians on this hotly contested issue.

The forum, to be held at the Holiday Inn Downtown in Jackson, is open to all Mississippians interested in the future of education, said MEC President Bob Pittman of Jackson.

Education leaders who will take part in the debate include: John Chubb, senior fellow at Brookings Institution in Washington, D.C., co-author of the nation's leading publication on choice and a proponent of choice.

Dr. Thomas Shannon, executive director of the National School Boards Association in Alexandria, Va., a visiting professor of Educational Administration at the University of Virginia and an opponent of choice.

Arthur Peyton, past chairman of the State Board of Education and assistant superintendent of the Greenville Separate School District, and Dr. J. Stevens Bean, headmaster of St. Andrew's Episcopal School in Jackson.

In addition to the panelists, Governor Kirk Fordice will deliver the keynote address. MEC Chairman Kenneth Williams of Corinth will preside over the forum, and Dr. Stephen McMahon of Jackson, chairman of MEC's Committee on Education Organization, will moderate the panel discussion.

The forum will begin at 10 a.m. on Jan. 23 and will adjourn following a luncheon session. Reservations for the forum may be made with the office of the Mississippi Economic Council in Jackson.

Senate committees study bills

After the Senate approved a lottery vote during the second week of the session, the House of Representatives followed suit last week, so a lottery vote will be on the ballot in November.

The Senate wound up its third week of the 1992 session with committee activity taking up most of the time.

The various committees are responsible for studying all bills introduced; they suggest changes if needed and determine which measures will be presented to the full Senate for debate and floor action.

With the initial committee organizational meetings already underway, most of the Senate's 29 standing committees are already working on the 337 Bills and 22 Concurrent Resolutions introduced so far.

Worker's Compensation has been the main focus of the Insurance Committee. The Insurance Committee seeks to improve the business climate in Mississippi through Worker's Compensation reform. However, Worker's Compensation reform has been controversial because many folks are fearful that legitimate benefits to injured workers might get cut off.

The Constitution Committee moved from the lottery to an equally controversial measure, Initiative and Referendum. Slated for consideration at some point this week, Initiative and Referendum would allow citizens of Mississippi to propose new laws or change existing laws, subject to a vote of the people.

After extensive organizational meetings and briefings by key people in the legal community, the Judiciary Committee is wrestling with such issues as reform and lobbying laws and instituting a penalty for violation of seat belt laws. Tort law, most commonly dealing with damage suits, is also up for reform consideration.

The Education Committee has held informational briefings and is currently working to restore last year's 30 million dollar cut made in the Minimum Foundation Program. This program funds elementary and secondary schools in Mississippi.

Both the Finance and Appropriations Committees received a depressing update on the state's financial situation from the Legislative Budget Office and the State Tax Commission. Both sources cautioned that it may be necessary to reduce the state revenue estimate for the current fiscal year if collections for the month of January fall short.

Such a shortfall could result in further budget cuts this fiscal year, which runs through June 30. While this year does not look good, it is not quite as bad as last year, so any cuts will not have to be as deep.

Please get in touch with me if you have any ideas about state government or the legislation we consider. By mail, send your comments to P.O. Box 1018, Jackson, MS 39215-1018. During the session it is best to call me at 359-3454. On weekends, I can be reached in Bay St. Louis at 467-2399.

FROM THE MISSISSIPPI HOUSE

Lottery issue goes to the voters

Mississippi voters will decide this fall whether to do away with a century-old constitutional provision banning lotteries in the state.

The House of Representatives gave its approval during the past week to the resolution calling for a statewide vote on the highly emotional issue. The proposal, which won Senate approval earlier, now goes on the November 3 general election ballot.

The vote on the lottery proposal was the first major floor action in the House since the start of the 1992 session. The primary focus in the opening weeks has been on organizational chores, introduction of bills, and committee activity.

There has been a sharp upswing in committee work with state finances, education, highways, and health care among the key issues being studied. More than 500 bills and resolutions have been introduced in the House and the number continues to grow daily.

Several committees held organizational meetings last week, handing out subcommittee assignments and referring bills to the subcommittees. Legislators also began the painstaking process of gathering facts and figures on the many complex issues awaiting consideration.

Dr. Richard Thompson, the State Superintendent of Education, was one of several education leaders who met recently with the House Education Committee.

The Insurance Committee conferred with health insurance officials, representatives of the state medical and hospital associations, and workers' compensation personnel. Among those going before the Public Health and Welfare Committee were officials from agencies involved in public health, mental health, human services and Medicaid programs.

The Transportation Committee got a briefing from state highway officials and the Department of Public Safety.

The Appropriations Committee and Ways and Means Committee received a rather gloomy update on state finances. Bobby Greenlee, director of the Legislative Budget Committee, and Deputy Tax Commissioner Lester Herrington cautioned it may be necessary to reduce the state's revenue estimate for the current fiscal year if January collections show a significant shortfall.

There is the possibility this could result in budget cuts this year, and it would affect income projections for the next fiscal year.

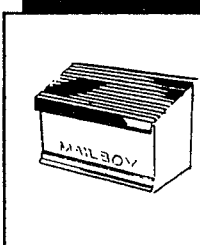

Other recent House action included passage of a bill aimed at helping simplify certain procedures in executing a will. The bill would permit the execution of a will to be proved by signed affidavits of the witnesses. The affidavits may be made part of the will.

The lottery resolution was approved 93-25 in the House, getting 14 more than the two-thirds vote needed for adoption. If ratified by the voters, it would repeal an old section in the state's 1890 Constitution that prohibits lotteries in Mississippi. Additional legislative action still would be required to set up a state lottery.

Similar proposals have been approved by the House on a number of occasions in recent years but died in the Senate. Lotteries are currently legal in more than 30 states, but Mississippi legislators—and citizens—have been sharply split on the matter.

Basic arguments by opponents are that a lottery would not be in the state's longterm interest, sends the wrong message to young people, and would put the state in the position of encouraging people to gamble. Backers view the lottery as a way to generate badly needed revenues for the state without boosting taxes. They also point out that Mississippi already is losing money to other states where lotteries are legal, including Louisiana and Florida.

A number of lawmakers have said they are against a lottery themselves, but want people to have a chance to vote on the question.

Sheriff's Dept. comes to the rescue

Dear Editor,
I would publicly like to thank the Hancock County Sheriff's Office for coming to my assistance when I mistakenly locked my truck keys in my truck at the car wash in Waveland.

Mertie Hearty, who answered the phone, calmed my anxieties and assured me that help would come.

I would especially like to thank Officer Pam Clark—she will never know the gratitude I felt.

Labat's honor was a well-deserved one

Dear Editor,
You are to be congratulated on the excellent story in Thursday's edition about the NAACP award which honored the Joe Labat family.

When I was a high school boy and began driving a delivery truck at my Dad's lumber yard in the 1930s, some of the first jobs I ever delivered lumber to were jobs being done by Joe Labat.

In 1937 he remodeled our home, adding another bathroom and upstairs living area. On several occasions my Dad told me that Joe Labat was one of the most honorable men he had ever done business with, and one of the best friends he had ever had.

I have never known any of the Labat family who failed to live up to the high standards set by their father or grandfather.

The NAACP did indeed make a good choice in honoring this well-known builder and outstanding citizen, and the family which followed.

Sincerely,
David N. McDonald

IN CONGRESS

Congress takes action to repeal boat user fee

South Mississippi boat owners who have reluctantly doled over $25, $35, $50 and in many cases $100 to pay a newly imposed boat user fee, may soon have relief.

Along with more than 200 members of the House, I have recently signed on a letter that was sent to Speaker of the House Thomas Foley on Jan. 21. The letter criticized this unfair fee and requested the Speaker to include a repeal of the Coast Guard recreational boat fee during this session of Congress.

Even though enforcement of the tax begun during the latter part of last year, members of the Merchant Marine and Fisheries Committee, of which I am a member, continue to be adamantly opposed to this unjustifiable fee.

The committee has now taken the lead because recreational boaters who pay this tax receive no additional benefits.

To make matters worse, disgruntled senior U.S. Coast Guard officials in Washington hinted earlier last year that the cost of enforcement would far outweigh the amount of new revenue going into the general fund.

My concern with this unfair situation led me to cosponsor H. R. 534, a bill to repeal the highly controversial Coast Guard "user fee" and write Speaker Foley for his assistance.

Moreover, the bill has been favorably supported by both the Merchant Marine and Fisheries Committee and the Ways and Means Committee. The Congress is clearly in agreement that this unjust fee should be eliminated.

Hopefully, we will repeal this tax during the second session of the 102nd Congress, and pleasure boat user fees will become a thing of the past.

three of them live, in many ways.

"Some parts of New Orleans are like Moscow, because the Moscow River runs through the city, just like the Mississippi River runs through New Orleans," Stacy explained.

The three girls chatted animatedly in Russian among themselves during the interview, comparing impressions of their trip. When asked what their favorite thing about being here was, the younger girls told Stacy something in their native tongue. Stacy offered no translation immediately, but sounded like she was playfully scolding Anya for her answer.

The girls are no strangers to each other — the three attend school together at the Christian Humanitarian Lyceum.

The school has been in operation one year, and is one of the first of its kind in Russia — an interdenominational Christian school that children can attend instead of going to the government-sponsored school. Stacy's father is its principal. Anya and Nasya's fathers are partners in a law firm.

Although the three girls are Russian Orthodox, Stacy said the school has in its enrollment children from Baptist, Pentecostal and many other backgrounds as well.

"Russia forgot God, so God forgot Russia. But we are remembering him now and returning to him, so everything is going to be okay," Stacy stated with all the directness and boldness of youth and faith.

In addition to New Orleans and Sunday school, the girls' list of favorite things about their visit included going shopping. Stacy bought a heavy coat, and Anya bought a pair of shoes.

Stacy said the stories about shortages in Russian stores are true. "Our stores have nothing," she stated with a shrug.

The two 12-year-olds got a taste of American movie classics while staying with the Mahlers. Their favorite one was Shirley Temple's The Little Princess.

They also saw The Wizard of Oz, The Little Mermaid, Honey,

I Shrunk the Kids and Beauty and the Beast, which Stacy also saw.

Carol Mahler, Dr. Mahler's wife, whispered several times during the interview last Thursday, "I've really enjoyed having them here. I'm already dreading their leaving."

Seafide further told the women that the county study does not contain a specific zoning ordinance, but does list recommendations for the process needed to formulate and adopt such an ordinance. Public hearings and workshops are part of that process.

He assured them the county is working to establish needed protections for county residents.

"It's in motion, but it takes time," he commented.

FAMILY CHILD CENTER
Gwen Meyers spoke on behalf of the South Mississippi Exchange Clubs' Family-Child Center.

She asked the board to approve a resolution which would request that the State Legislature permit counties and cities to make an annual donation to the center, which offers to victims, their families and agencies that deal with child abuse cases several programs addressing various aspects of the problem.

Larry Bates, treasurer for the Family-Child Center's board of directors, had asked the supervisors earlier in the month to consider financial assistance to the center.

He had requested that the supervisors consider setting aside for the center a $5,000 annual donation in the county budget, beginning in fiscal year 1993, and consider donating $2,500 this year, if possible, to help defray a $15,000 deficit in the center's budget funds. At that time, Bates said services may have to be cut if the center cannot meet the set level.

When Bates spoke to the board, he presented them with a copy of the resolution. However, Gex said he thought the original wording of the resolution was too vague, and he asked that it be made more specific.

Gex explained that he was concerned that any organization claiming to work toward the prevention of child abuse would be able to ask for donations under the resolution's original wording.

The board took the matter under advisement after speaking to Bates. When Meyers brought a revised, more specific, resolution to the board Tuesday, the supervisors unanimously approved it.

Gex reminded the supervisors that the resolution does not obligate the county to make a donation, but simply voices the board's support of a measure authorizing them to donate funds.

OTHER BUSINESS

The board approved the continuance of the county's Metropolitan Narcotics Task Force for 1992; took under advisement several bids for culverts, tires and tubes; approved a resolution declaring March 21 as the county kickoff day for the Chamber of Commerce's "Plan for Pride and Progress" anti-litter campaign and the week of April 20 as "Litter Awareness Week"; and heard reports from Gex, Lora Mederos with the Child Development Center, Chancery Clerk Mike Ncaise, purchase clerk Suzette Beech and road superintendent Sam Cuevas.

POSSESSION WITH INTENT TO DISTRIBUTE (MARIJUANA)

Mississippi Highway Patrol Sgt. Dan Tackett reported the arrest of a Texas man on drug-related charges Saturday.

Tackett said Eugene D. Ramirez, 25, of Pharr, Texas was taken to the Hancock County jail after being charged with reckless driving and possession of marijuana with intent to distribute.

Trooper Mike Cox pulled Ramirez over on Interstate 10 around 9:58 a.m. Saturday after Cox saw Ramirez change lanes abruptly and almost hit another vehicle, Tackett said. Cox reportedly smelled the marijuana and found a suitcase containing 52 pounds of the drug in the back seat of the 1981 Ford Thunderbird Ramirez was driving.

When it rains...

A DIFFERENT VIEW

By Traci Bonney

I had an interesting adventure with my umbrella recently.

No, squelch those Mary Poppins-type visions, if you had any. I didn't go gliding across the landscape in a windstorm.

After arriving at church one day not too long ago, I tried to open my umbrella upon leaving the car. Well, the umbrella opened, but the shaft (or whatever you call the main stick part) didn't take the rest of the umbrella with it. The stitching that held the top of the fabric in place apparently tore, and the umbrella stayed put at the bottom of the contraption. It looked like a mutant mushroom.

Since such an arrangement is not very safe, I decided that a new umbrella might be a good thing to have. So, I went to the local "jungle" and bought one while making a few other purchases.

Well, my new umbrella mostly resembles my old one, except for two things: 1. It works; and 2. It has a warranty.

Aren't you impressed? I was—for about as long as it took to read the warranty card.

Now, to avoid the risk of making some company exec angry

(as if someone in Ohio is actually reading this column), I will not name the company in question. But let me give you a quick overview of the warranty.

It's good for two years; it covers the frame only, not the fabric, handle or case; it doesn't cover damage caused by accident, abuse or failure to allow the umbrella to dry in an open position; and it'll cost you three bucks for shipping and handling, plus the cost to mail the busted umbrella to the company, just to find out if they will replace it.

The card called it a limited warranty. Nice to know there's some truth in advertising, because this warranty is about as limited as they get.

For starters, my new umbrella has no case, so it doesn't matter if the nonexistent case isn't covered by the warranty.

Next, the warranty claims it doesn't cover "damage caused by accident, abuse or failure to allow the umbrella to dry in an open position." Just what type of damage does it cover, then?

Apparently, according to this little piece of tiny-print cardboard, the only thing covered by the warranty is a defect in materials or workmanship. Doesn't the company hire an inspector to keep such defective umbrellas from getting into the stores?

On top of all this, you have to send the umbrella, if it breaks, to the company, along with $3 for shipping and handling of the replacement—if the company decides to replace it, which they don't actually have to do if they decide it isn't necessary.

Anybody know how much it costs to mail an umbrella?

Maybe I'm wrong, but it this sucker breaks, I plan to chuck it and just buy a new one. I have a sneaky suspicion it'll be cheaper that way.

Estess receives Presidential Award

NASA's Roy Estess, director of the John C. Stennis Space Center, received the honor or Presidential Rank for the second time in his career during ceremonies in Washington, D.C.

The Presidential Rank of Distinguished Executive is the highest award given to a civil service employee. It is given annually to not more than one percent of Senior Executive Service (SES) career federal employees for sustained extraordinary accomplishment.

Estess was one of eight NASA employees nationwide to receive the rank. Estess has served the federal government for over three decades through a continuous progression of positions of increased responsibility, from aeronautical engineer in the U.S. Air Force in 1960 to head of the nation's premier test facility for large propulsion systems.

His NASA career began in 1966 at Stennis Space Center as a propulsion test engineer working on the second stage of the Saturn V vehicle in the Apollo lunar landing program. During his tenure at Stennis, Estess held a number of engineering and management positions including SSC deputy director from 1980 to 1989.

As director of SSC since January 1989, Estess heads an aggressive test program which has expanded from Space Shuttle Main Engine testing to designing and constructing new test areas for the shuttle's Advanced Solid Rocket Motor and for the future National Launch System.

Stennis also conducts research and technology development in a number of areas including testing technology, thermal imaging applications and commercial use of space. In addition to the NASA-assigned programs, as center director, Estess is responsible for giving technical and institutional support to the programs of 19 resident and federal agencies and university activities.

Since November 1991, Estess has been on temporary assignment to NASA Headquarters as a special assistant to Administrator Richard Truly until a new NASA deputy administrator is sworn in.

Among his other career achievements, Estess chaired a NASA "blue ribbon" committee following the 1986 Challenger accident. The findings and recommendations of this team provided the framework for many of the changes introduced in the processing of flight hardware at the Kennedy Space Center to improve the safety and reliability of the Space Shuttle.

Estess is a 1960 aerospace engineering graduate of Mississippi State University, and he has completed the advanced management program at the Harvard Graduate School of Business. He is a registered professional engineer in the state of Mississippi and is a member of the National Space Club and Mississippi Academy of Sciences.

Estess and his wife Zann reside in Pearl River County.

Brass Anchor owner works hard to clean up image

BY JACQUEL COCHRAN

The name Leather and Lace made Roddy Prestenbach hesitate in hiring the otherwise "exactly" and "exactly" searched for long and hard. She said in the year she has owned the Brass Anchor Lounge on Highway 90 she has tried to separate the break away from the negative reputation which preceded her arrival and have a drink and not hear any cursing or witness any trouble.

"I wanted a club where people can come and have a good time. I have that now."

Following several months and many new faces, Prestenbach said she was ready to search for a band which could play to any audience.

"I felt it was important that ive musical background prior to her marriage. A New Orleans native, she had played with various bands throughout the United States. With a Ruston, La. band, "Silk and Steel," she traveled from Florida to Las Vegas.

Henry G. had spent nine years with Mickey Gilley. Playing out of his hometown, Houston, he was part of Gilley's road with Leather and Lace for two weeks.

He is a Waveland native, who says he has been playing since he was nine years old and beating on his mother's Tupperware and pots and pans.

Peterson played with County Round-Up for five years, moved to Atlanta for a year, and returned to his hometown where he has played with local musicians.

"We couldn't ask for a better drummer," Henry G. added, "and I have played with some of the best."

"We have good harmony," Elliott interjected. "We work well together."

Harrington continued, "With a band, you have to have a feeling. This group has that feeling. What ever we want to produce can come together for us, because we are together."

"They play to the crowd," Prestenbach stated. "One thing this band does, is to walk around and speak with the customers asking what they would like to hear. It shows a concern to entertain the people and make everyone happy."

Leather and Lace are planning to record some original songs in the future. Henry G. and Harrington already have a recording commitment with Swamp Land Studio in Slidell.

For now, they are looking to make the Brass Anchor dance floor a place to come and have an enjoyable time. Some place where a customer will wish to return again and again.

From Stevie Ray Vaughn blues to Unchained Melody by the Righteous Brothers to current country, these four musicians are ready and waiting every Thursday, Friday and Saturday to help rock those old Hancock County blues away.

Jan Harrington, Henry G., Stanley Peterson and Jim Elliott

While up her sleeves she tucked in the building with some simple soup and water for starters.

The club boasts of having the largest dance floor in the area, and aside from VFW or American Legion halls.

Prestenbach, recognizing the asset of the dance floor, immediately went out and hired a country western band. With the change in music, there followed a change in clientele.

Standing about five feet tall, Prestenbach confided, "It was stressful, having to tell people to leave. I had decided there would be no more fighting and ready behavior allowed."

"I wanted the kind of club a man can walk into with his wife the club has the right kind of band. One that can play a variety of music."

Prestenbach traveled to Slidell, where she first heard Henry G. and his wife, Jan Harrington, performing as a duet.

Both vocalists, Henry G. plays lead guitar and Harrington plays keyboards. They began playing together about five years ago, when after two years of marriage, Henry G. discovered his wife's musical talent.

"Henry was surprised when I told him I could play the accordion," Harrington laughed. "He was even more surprised when I said I had played the accordion in the 1976 national finals."

Harrington had an impress-and studio band during this time.

In Slidell, the couple met up with old friend Jim Elliott, owner of Elliott's Shoe Repair.

Elliott and Henry G. played the musician circle in New Orleans and were part of Slidell band Southern Spirit until 1982.

Elliott, the bass player, joined the duet just prior to Prestenbach's inquiries.

"When Bootsie came to see us in Slidell nine months ago, we didn't have a drummer," Henry G. commented. "She was still shopping, so it wasn't until she was ready with an offer that we began looking around and found Stanley."

Dr. Larry Heller

SSC juniors hear AIDS awareness presentation

BY T. H. (DOC) TOUPS

The St. Stanislaus High School junior class retreat provided an opportunity for the students to learn more about the threat of AIDS.

Dr. Larry Heller, an AIDS sufferer, Eddie Sandifer, executive director of the Mississippi Gay and Lesbian Alliance, and Edith Back of the People with AIDS project, addressed the students during an hour-long question-and-answer session.

The students asked the panelists numerous questions regarding risk factors, transmission hazards and methods of prevention.

Dr. Heller held the students' attention with his first person account of living with the disease.

After the function, SSC President Brother Paul Montero said, "It's wonderful that a man who is undergoing such a personal tragedy is giving of himself like this. I hope that we've helped to clear up misunderstanding among the students."

Sandifer said, "I thought the students put some good questions to us. I only wish we'd had more time."

Post 58 Volunteer Fire Dept. prepares for future needs with two planned substations

BY JACQUI COCHRAN

The Post 58 Volunteer Fire Department has a great deal for which to be thankful.

Incorporated less than four years ago, it has a large four-bay station on Highway 603 in the Standard community; a new substation ready to go near Crane Creek Road in the northern part of the county; and land donated for a second substation in the Cuevastown area, completing access to the southeastern most part of its 85 square miles of district protection.

Anderson-Shaw American Legion Post 58 Commander Hilbert Deschamp credits much of the district's growth to the support of the local Legion.

He said, "The Legion built the Post 58 station, along with the Crane Creek substation."

"All together, I would estimate the Legion has contributed close to $200,000 to this fire department."

"If every fire department could have an American Legion like we have sitting next to us," a lone voice interjected, "they would consider themselves lucky, too."

Post 58 has 1,500 members, of which 125 are paying members.

The department asks $12 a year from every household in the district. "People mean well," stated department president George Manuel. "They are willing to commit the money, but then other things come up, and a lot of them forget to mail their dues in; so we go door-to-door every year around this time."

"I believe we would all rather be fighting a fire than having to knock on doors."

Aside from collecting membership dues, Manuel said the greatest need Post 58 has at this time is additional volunteers.

"The Legion has been supportive and the members we do have are very committed, but we need more community involvement," he commented. "We need more manpower."

Post 58 has 17 firefighters, each contributing anywhere from 60 to 160 hours per month. The greatest need is for more firefighters.

According to Shaw, if everyone in the community would contribute one hour a week, Post 58 could have both substations manned and ready tomorrow.

"We have the stuff," he added. "We just need the people

A few of the 125 voting members

to train."

As the monthly meeting was being conducted, three women were in the kitchen arranging a variety of dishes and casseroles.

Following every meeting, the members share conversation and a pot-luck meal together.

Fire districts are financed through four sources: donations and dues; state insurance rebate monies; fire protection district millage; and county funds.

The handling of county and insurance rebate funds is a point of inconvenience for Post 58, as it is located about 20 miles from the county fire marshal's office.

In order for the department to use county and insurance rebate monies, the department must apply to the fire marshal's office for purchase approval. A purchase order must be written and a check must be issued for the purchase.

According to Fire Marshal Jay Marsh, county and insurance rebates funds are managed as all county monies through a comptroller. He added that these funds are limited to capital gains, large purchases such as equipment.

Post 58 members expressed a desire to see each department given control over its own county and rebate funds. They stated that though they understood the need to govern how the monies are to be spent, they felt the individual departments could do that just as well as the county, saving time and expense through all the additional clerical work.

Also, Post 58 would like to be able to benefit from the interest collected on the county and rebate fund accounts, which presently is reabsorbed by the county general fund.

Each fire protection district receives four mills from the county's property tax collections. The funds are given to the various district's board of commissioners, who delegate the funds for any of that department's operational needs.

These monies are only limited in that any purchase over $500 must be accompanied by bids.

It was expressed that as each department has an elected board, and every dues-paying member has a vote, adequate safeguards are in place to insure proper management of funds.

Less central management by the county and more self-management by the individual departments was the preferred future change Post 58 members named.

Another change Post 58 would like to see is in reimbursement for medical calls.

The county contracts yearly with an emergency medical service, licensed Emergency Medical Technician (EMT) Deborah Sherwin explained, "The majority of the time we can reach the people faster than the ambulance, since we are closer to them."

"What I would like to see is more trained medical personnel in the fire departments and for the departments to be subsidized for the calls they answer. Maybe a rebate from the contracted company."

Post 58 answered 125 medical calls in 1991.

The members of Post 58 present for the January meeting mingled after the business of the department was completed.

They spoke of the days prior to the creation of Post 58, when the Standard Community had to call upon its neighbors from Kiln, Fenton and Leetown for assistance.

"We have the potential here for a great department," Manuel stated. "But it takes commitment from every resident."

Tree planting grant offered to Miss. small businesses

The Mississippi Forestry Commission is currently taking applications for tree planting grants under the U.S. Small Business Administration's Natural Resources Development Program.

The non-federal share may be in the form of cash or in-kind contributions.

Grantees must utilize small businesses to plant the trees and, when feasible, allow more than one firm to perform work under the project. In addition, if purchased, the trees are to be bought from small businesses, businesses that have no more than 100 employees.

The state of Mississippi is eligible to receive a total of $151,072 in 1992 for projects to be carried out between September 1992 and May 1993.

The program was first implemented in 1991 when Mississippi received over $149,000 for projects that are currently underway. When completed, it is estimated that some 2,500 trees will have been planted in 15 communities under the program in 1991-92.

This national tree planting program is designed for the purpose of contracting with small businesses to plant trees on land owned or controlled by state or local government.

The program is designed as a 55 percent federal, 45 percent non-federal matching program.

To receive a grant application package for the 1992-93 planting season, contact Mississippi Forestry Commission, 301 North Lamar Street, Suite 300, Jackson, MS 39201, Attn: Urban Forestry. The phone number is 359-1386.

FISHIN' Y'ALL

By Jim Maness

Last week's fishing registered between very bleak and dismal

It's time to go fishin' y'all. Well, let me tell you how the fishin' went this past week.

I hooked up my horseless carriage and took off like half a herd of turtles at less than full speed, but not quite slow speed. In fact, it was only half-fast speed, in the direction of Pearl River.

When I got to the Pearl River launch it was at once apparent that I forgot something very important—my plow. The color of the river indicated that if I would only have brought my tractor, and the disk blades, that I could have put in one of the best crops in years. The soil was some of the best growing soil that you could ever fantasize.

You can just imagine how disappointing it was when some mean people took the time to inform me that the beautiful plantin' soil that I was looking at was in fact not a good place to plow, as it was the river.

After learning that all of that mud was not dry land after all, but was Pearl River, I did not have the heart to ask anyone in the area if they caught any fish in the Pearl River fields. Seein' no immediate fishin' future in this area, I jumped into my horseless carriage (actually I sorta' just moseyed into my truck) and went to the Ansley area to check out "all the action" around there.

After due diligence and supreme searching, the results were that the fishin' in this area was between slow and nonexistent. That means the fish went "east with the geese" or something like that. Only a few perch showed up in this area. If other fish were caught no one would tell me.

The Jourdan River area only produced a few specks and a couple of sac-a-lac that I heard of.

Looks like the only consistent catch of fish was around the wooden bunkers of the rail road bridge in the Bay of St. Louis. A few sheephead were being caught on the bottom with dead shrimp.

All in all the fishin' has ranged between bleak and dismal. So this might be a good time to clean up your gear and oil everything in anticipation of the fishin' fun to come.

This week's wonderful wise words: Your legislature is in session. If you were unhappy with, or happy with, all of the fishin' rules that came down last year, now is the time to let your legislator know how you feel.

The squeaky wheel gets the grease, turtle.
